

New World Leadership™

We are the Most Trusted Partner, providing long term, transformational shift within leaders, their teams and the organization.

Emotional Intelligence

Emotional Intelligence (EQ) is one of the most important skills a leader can possess. Based on important research EQ has proven to be directly linked to business performance. Understanding our EQ strengths and weakness is a valuable component to self-awareness and our ability to build effective development plans.

The Workshop

This session explores the key components of EQ and allows each participant to reflect on their personal results in a safe and effective way. The EQi2.0 is one of the most recognized EQ Inventories available today. Used globally in over 20 countries results are valid and reliable.

New World Leadership™

We are the Most Trusted Partner, providing long term, transformational shift within leaders, their teams and the organization.

The Process

Registration for this session must take place 4 weeks prior to the session. This allows each participant to complete his or her own personal EQi-2.0 inventory. Each attendee is then contacted by one of our qualified faculty members in order to provide a personal debrief one on one confidential session. The day of the training session we review all sub-scales measured by the EQ assessment and explore ways in which these affect our leadership style. We also explore how to enhance specific Sub-Scales as desired.

Contributors at all levels can significantly benefit from this session, as our ability to balance the IQ with EQ is critical in today's business context.

Each attendee is also required to do a small amount of pre-reading.

The Investment

This session requires both a facilitation fee and individual per person fee in order to cover the unique costs of the EQi2.0 Inventory.

We can accommodate as many as 12 people per session as long as we have the full 3-weeks lead-time to complete the individual one on one debrief coaching sessions.
